Concept

Her spaces are based on translations of her experiences with the landscape. She has been working in a variety of places where she seeks a profound dialogue with the territory, on a biological and life-changing level, and also focusing on its dramatic capacity of power and catastrophe. There is an osmotic experience with space, where nature ends up as an integral part, leading her to obtain physical models of translation. She focuses on the phenomenological, both physical and psychological, with a view to achieving everything that is mysterious in an essentially ambiguous and ever-changing environment.
