Concept

The work is arismendi's universe, product of measurable volumes, motion and wavelengths of light. It prevails as literal conclusions drawn from an unrelenting research of materials, supplies and remodeling. In an almost casual and brief gesture, arismendi transforms a myriad of objects, gathered from everyday life, and compiles them within a surrealist principle - the output is a rhapsodical configuration of the familiar, all in blissful technicolor.

The artist attempts to give order by measuring her time, her work and her possibilities - obsessive repetition provides coined systems unique to the artist alone. The series entitled the drawing seasons comprise of florid works on paper that are bound to arismendi's juncture of creativity. the pieces are confined to be realized in the lapse of a tv-episode, from start to end - the result is a body of fluid geometrical structures that express a moment when the mind is on auto-run. they verge on the massonian, arrangements of shapes created within in a brief, contiguous period of time. it is disciplined practice based on a framework of automatism.
